Robbers Wreck a Fast Train on the Santa Fe

SEVERAL PERSONS WERE KILLED

Men Stricken at Their Awful Deed the Robbers Fled A Treasury of a Million Dollars Was in the Train A Large Reward

[illegible]

The station house at Barclay station had been broken into and rifled and a rail was displaced on the track at the point where the wreck occurred. The night express train was wrecked at the exact spot of three accidents. There is no clue as yet who removed the rail and it is supposed that the object of the fiend was to rob.

The wounded included Frank Bayer, express messenger Kansas City Bloomenthal, express guards man Mexico Jones Chadwick Brown Topeka Lil Mayer engineer Topeka. The wounded were Mary Truman Bloomington Ills badly bruised and injured about the head and face William Doer and child Chicago Mo badly bruised and scarified Mrs M Jones and two children Wichita slightly bruised Thomas Nelson Topeka bruised about head and face M A Roberts Emporia back injured Mrs W H Miller Macon Mo injured in side and shoulder J F Waddell, Boynton Kan injured in left hips. S Kelly Kansas City postal clerk internally injured fatally.

The cars piled one over another until the express and baggage car were hidden from the public view. The box containing the money remained on the track but the other cars were completely demolished. Men, women and children were piled over each other, caught in the broken seats and thrown through the windows of the cars.

Relief first reached the wrecked train from Emporia. An examination of the track was made and it was found that the fish plates had been carefully removed the bolts taken out and the spikes drawn from ten ties and the rail bent over to the inside. Robbery was unquestionably the object. The train carried $1,000,000 in currency en route from the Mexican Central railway to its headquarters in Boston. In examining the ground about the wreck a spot was found where three men had lain in the grass and tracks were found leading from this spot to the track. The section house at Barclay was broken into last night and a crowbar, wrench and sledge hammer stolen. All of those tools except the crowbar were found and the fish plates and bolts which had been removed were also discovered.

The passengers were brought to this city at 10 o'clock this morning. Some of the wounded who could not be removed were left at Osage City and the others were taken to Topeka hospital here.

A. A. Robinson, manager of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of each of the men implicated in wrecking the train. Maj. W. H. Llewellin, live stock agent of the road, was on board the wrecked train and claims to have taken possession of the iron chest in which the Mexican Central currency was placed. Major Llewellin says the money was in an iron ribbed box three feet long and was buried so deep in the wreck that the robbers could not have found it.

The train bearing the injured arrived in Topeka shortly before noon. Besides the list of killed already reported thirty-five persons sustained injuries more or less serious. Those whose injuries are thought to be fatal are S. G. Kelly of Kansas City, express messenger and Mrs Mary Lyman of Bloomington Ill. Kelly is a brother of Senator H. B. Kelley of McPherson.

Ed Mayer, the engineer who was killed lived in Kansas City and leaves a wife and two children.

The body of James Chaddick, fireman, is completely buried under the wreck of the engine and has not been recovered. Assistant general-manager Jansen denies the rumor that the track was not in good condition. He says the track was in perfect condition and says that evidence is indisputable that bolts and spikes were pulled. The body of Frank Baxter, express messenger, who was killed was brought to Kansas City with several of the injured late this afternoon. He leaves a wife and four small children.

Besides the box containing the million dollars of the Mexican railroad there were on the train three combination safes containing money and bonds, but so far as can be ascertained no efforts were made to take any of these. There is no doubt but robbers were hidden in the grass and were frightened away when they saw the extent of the wreck which they had not anticipated. The latest reports from the Topeka and Kansas City hospitals are that the wounded are all resting well and that the injuries of none except those named are likely to prove fatal. Several persons are scouring the country for the miscreants who caused the wreck and if found they will be summarily dealt with.

General manager Robinson of the Santa Fe says the road will spare no money or pains to catch the assassins.

A FEARFUL WRECK

A Collision at Full Speed on the Fort Wayne Road

Wooster O Sept. 21—The most fearful wreck that has occurred on the Fort Wayne road in many years took place one and a half miles west of Shreve this morning when train No. 8 eastbound, collided with the first section of westbound freight No. 75.

The charred remains of twelve persons have already been taken from the wreck and it is believed that there are some others still buried. Four railway postal clerks, two firemen three ladies, two children and a brakeman are known to be killed.

All the bodies thus far taken from the wreck were burned and charred beyond all recognition.

Fire broke out almost instantly, burning two mail cars, one passenger coach and three freight cars. Half a dozen persons were badly injured but all were able to proceed to their homes. The wreck trains stopped by the heap of ruins red hot from the terrible fire and owing to the impossibility of getting water, the wreck hands were able to do but little to clear up the debris. Passengers who escaped say the cries of the imprisoned victims were simply agonizing. Engineers on both trains jumped one having his legs broken and the other escaped without injury.

Twelve charred and burned bodies have been taken from the wrecked train. They were George Smith fireman, of Crestline; J. D. Patterson, Beaver Falls, Pa.; J. C. Mann, Chicago; H. S. Allen, Cincinnati; O. D. E. Rees, Massillon, O. all railway postal clerks, fireman and front brakeman on freight train, names unknown; two ladies and child, believed to be from Fagyville Pa. a lady and child of Akron, O.

Mrs Cutherson is all there as a boarding house and it was in a room in the rear tenement that Wallagen was stricken. There are about 200 regular boarders in the tenement and none of them will be permitted to leave the premises until all precautionary measures against the spread of the disease have been taken. The three houses will be thoroughly fumigated and the wearing apparel and other articles belonging to the occupants will be washed in a solution of bichloride of mercury. President Wilson decided later that it would be a good idea to give each lodger a bath and he ordered fifty wooden bath tubs to be taken there for that purpose. Dr Roberts said that reports of suspicious cases were constantly coming in and that the inspectors had their hands full investigating these cases.

Two people were removed from their homes to the reception hospital to-day but it is doubtful if either has cholera. They were Henry Engel of No 4 Extra Place, and Mary Murphy of 63 Cherry street. Engel lived in the same house with Weinhagen and had been suffering from diarrhoea. Dr Roberts told a reporter that he had been removed merely as a precautionary measure. Mary Murphy was found suffering from fits of vomiting cramps and diarrhoea. This is reason for belief that she has the disease. The house at 63 Cherry street has been partly quarantined. An inspector has been put in charge.

Another suspicious case reported was that of Patrick Steward 50 years of age, a boiler maker in the Brooklyn navy yard. Steward lives at 15 Morris street. He has been suffering from severe pains in the stomach vomiting, fits and diarrhoea. He was removed to the reception hospital and an inspector was sent to the Morris street house to quarantine it.

Among other cases reported for investigation was that of Woerzick Heolmer, 21 years old, who was found sick shortly after midnight at Eleventh street and Second avenue. A Bellevue hospital ambulance surgeon examined the man and refused to take him. He notified the health board and Inspector Lilly at least the man suffering from inflammation of the bowels.

Cholera in Texas

Austin, Tex, Sept. 21—Fear of cholera in Texas is growing daily and her officials are exercising every known precaution to help out the scourge. The fact that San Antonio has several cases of cholera exists in the whole state. Health officer Swearingen fears that the disease may gain a foothold among the poor people of the Rio Grande. For eighteen months this section of country has been starving and is so weak physically that if the disease gains a foothold it will sweep the whole section. To-day Governor Hogg issued a quarantine proclamation, to go into effect Sept. 27, requiring all ships from New York or infected points to go in ten days' quarantine before entering any Texas harbor. All railroads entering the state are, by this proclamation compelled to undergo a thorough examination.

An Unlook at Outlook.

Camp Low Sandy Hook, Sept. 21—With pestilence and starvation in view the outlook for the inhabitants of the quarantine station is anything but pleasant.

Managers of the southern branch of the New Jersey Central railroad to-day notified General Hamilton that from this date no tickets for subscriptions for the masses would be carried by their trains. Before the general received from this news a telegram came from Secretary Hone, of the state board of health of New Jersey, saying that the authorities of the state could render no help because of the terror of the masses in towns near Camp Low. This action puts the camp in bad plight, for there is barely enough coal and food on hand to last twenty-four hours, but officials here do not believe that the public will sanction this shutting off of supplies.

Still No Cholera.

New Brunswick, N J., Sept. 21. This evening Dr H R. Baldwin, president of the board of health, received the bacteriological report of Dr Edson of New York on the case of James Carr, who died here a few days ago. The report says 'James Carr died of genuine Asiatic cholera.'

Hamburg's Plague Abating.

Hamburg Sept. 21.—The reports from the stricken suburbs to-day have encouraged the people to believe that steady and rapid abatement of the plague has begun. The fresh cases number 513, or sixty four less than yesterday. The deaths were 181 or eight less than yesterday. The burials were 216 or forty-five less than yesterday. In the hospitals there are 2791 patients or 248 less than yesterday.

The temporary field hospitals have been closed. The physicians and nurses are now able to attend to their duties while observing their regular hours. The evacuation of the morbarian hospital and many drivers of [illegible] have been paid off and discharged. The [illegible] of the unemployed, however has become almost as grave a question as has been the cholera. The relief committee is spending thousands of marks daily, yet can not feed 50 per cent of the persons applying for food. The eating-beds are besieged by hungry crowds all day and if hundreds of families are to be abandoned to starvation, new systems of serving fresh meats must be found.

This work must be continued for many weeks after the disappearance of the epidemic, for thousands who have been before saved from their autumn wages for their support are penniless and destitute already.

Forty thousand marks from New York were received to-day for the relief fund. Contributions from other cities in the empire are meager. Berlin is said to be sending little or nothing.

CHOLERA NOTES.

The Brazilian government has issued a decree declaring that the port of New York is infected with cholera and that other Atlantic ports of the United States are under suspicion of infection and that steamships and other vessels from all ports will have to be prepared first to the quarantine station at Isle Grande near Rio Janeiro for inspection.

The rage of cholera at Buda Pesth, Hungary, proves to be of the Asiatic variety. A dispatch from Warsaw says that the chief rabbi has authorized the clergy of Cracow in view of the spread of cholera to curtail the ceremonies and cut short the burying dead [illegible]

New York Sept 21—Bulletins were posted by the health department late last night this afternoon announcing that the bacteriologists of the board of health had been examining the cases of Coachman Leon Weinhage of No 4 Extra Place and John Kuhn a stoker of the steamship State of Nevada, had reported the discovery of the germs of Asiatic cholera. As soon as President Wilson received the results of the examinations he decided the three tenements [illegible] Extra Place quarantined. New York Stock Market.

New York Sept. 21—Money on call easy at 1@1½ per cent. The closing rate was 1 per cent.

Stocks were exceedingly dull this morning. The sales to noon amounted to only 126,000 shares.

The principal trading was in Reading, Colorado Coal, Erie, Northern Pacific preferred, Burlington, St. Paul and Whisky. The two first named were about the only stocks that displayed any strength. The former advanced 1⅞ and the latter 1¼ per cent. Northern Pacific preferred and Whisky Trust were the weak features and declined fractionally by noon.

The general market was extremely dull and fluctuated within a very narrow range. Prices at noon were only slightly changed from yesterday's figures. The market continued dull in the last half of the day, but fluctuations were wider. The dealings were almost wholly of a professional character. The demand and supply was for the most part governed by the operations of room traders. Late in the day, on rumors that the arrival of Mr Roberts, of the Pennsylvania railroad, on the City of Paris would be followed by an amicable agreement between the Pennsylvania and Reading roads in the matter of the coal deal, the coal shares became very strong and advanced 1 to 1¾ per cent. The closing prices were generally the highest, about one-half the list showing advances of ½@2 per cent and the remainder corresponding declines.

The total sales for the day amounted to 265,247 shares.

A Strike Threatened

St Louis, Sept. 21—There seems very little reason to doubt that the outcome of the troubles between the Missouri Pacific and its telegraphers will be a strike. The rupture will not occur for a few days yet and in the interim both parties are preparing for a stubborn struggle. The statement that the telegraphers' grievance committee had reported and gone after the conference with Superintendent Hammond Monday was erroneous. The full committee is still in St Louis and is one generally thought quietly at work on the plans for the strike to be inaugurated next Monday. Further than the positive knowledge that the committee is here and held two sessions yesterday and this morning nothing is known of it.

Arrived at La Guayra

Washington, Sept. 21. Admiral Walker arrived at La Guayra, Venezuela, yesterday in the U. S. S. Chicago. This information was contained in a telegram received at the navy department this morning. No other facts are stated and it is presumed, therefore that no fighting is going on in the immediate vicinity of La Guayra. Admiral Walker now has three ships at his service, the Chicago, Concord and Kearsarge. The Concord, at latest advices had been sent to Puerto Cabello.

The Brazilian Quarantine.

New York Sept. 21—A notice was posted at the Maritime exchange to-day to the effect that Brazil had declared a quarantine against all Atlantic ports of the United States, describing New York as "infected" and all other Atlantic ports as "suspected." Shipping said this would mean a practical embargo. The Brazilian minister cabled his government that no case of cholera had appeared in New York since the 13th inst and asked that the order be modified.

At Fire Island.

Fire Island N. Y., Sept. 21—The fourth day since the arrival here of the passengers from the Wyoming has passed without a notable incident. No fresh signs of the disease have developed, and with the exception of the indisposition of three children whose condition to-day is improved, the health of the passengers is excellent.

MORE CASES BEING REPORTED

One of Them is from a Crowded Tenement House The New Jersey Case Was Real Cholera Texas People are Alarmed

New York Sept. 21—Bulletins were posted at the health department last night and again this afternoon announcing that the bacteriologists of the board of health had been examining the cases of Coachman Leon Weinhage of No. 4 Extra Place and John Kane stoker of the steamship State of Nevada, and had reported the discovery of the germs of Asiatic cholera. As soon as President Wilson received the results of the examinations he decided the three Eighteenth street houses and Extra Place quarantined. A Mrs Catherine Hall, who was a boarding house, and it was in a room in the rear tenement that Weinhagen was stricken. There are about 200 regular boarders in the tenement and none of them will be permitted to leave the premises until all precautionary measures against the spread of the disease have been taken. The three houses will be thoroughly fumigated and the wearing apparel and other articles belonging to the occupants will be washed in a solution of bichloride of mercury. President Wilson decided later that it would be a good idea to give each lodger a bath and he ordered fifty wooden bath tubs to be taken there for that purpose. Dr Roberts said that reports of suspicious cases were constantly coming in and that the inspectors had their hands full investigating these cases.

Two people were removed from their homes to the reception hospital to-day but it is doubtful if either has cholera. They were Henry Engel of No. 4 Extra Place, and Mary Murphy of 63 Cherry street. Engel lived in the same house with Weinhagen and had been suffering from diarrhœa. Dr Roberts told a reporter that he had been removed merely as a precautionary measure. Mary Murphy was found suffering from fits of vomiting, cramps and diarrhœa. This is reason for belief that she has the disease. The house at 63 Cherry street has been partly quarantined. An inspector has been put in charge.

Another suspicious case reported was that of Patrick Steward 50 years of age, a boiler maker in the Brooklyn navy yard. Steward lives at 15 Morris street. He has been suffering from severe pains in the stomach, vomiting, fits and diarrhœa. He was removed to the reception hospital and an inspector was sent to the Morris street house to quarantine it.

Among other cases reported for investigation was that of Woerzick Heolmer, 24 years old, who was found sick shortly after midnight at Eleventh street and Second avenue. A Bellevue hospital ambulance surgeon examined the man and refused to take him. He notified the health board and Inspector Lilly at [illegible] the man suffering from inflammation of the bowels.

Cholera in Texas

Austin, Tex., Sept. 21—Fear of cholera in Texas is growing daily and her officials are exercising every known precaution to help out the scourge. The fact that San Antonio has several cases of cholera exists in the whole state. Health Officer Swearingen fears that the disease may gain a foothold among the poor people of the Rio Grande. For eighteen months this section of country has been starving and is so weak physically that if the disease gains a foothold it will sweep the whole section. To-day Governor Hogg issued a quarantine proclamation, to go into effect Sept. 27, requiring all ships from New York or infected points to go in ten days' quarantine before entering any Texas harbor. All railroads entering the state are, by this proclamation compelled to undergo a thorough examination.

An Unlook at Outlook.

Camp Low Sandy Hook, Sept. 21—With pestilence and starvation in view the outlook for the inhabitants of the quarantine station is anything but pleasant.

Managers of the southern branch of the New Jersey Central railroad to-day notified General Hamilton that from this date no tickets for subpœnas issued by the marshal would be carried by their trains. Before the General received from this news a telegram came from Secretary Hone, of the state board of health of New Jersey, saying that the authorities of the state could render no help because of the terror of the disease in towns near Camp Low. This action puts the camp in bad plight, for there is barely enough coal and food on hand to last twenty-four hours, but officials here do not believe that the public will sanction this shutting off of supplies.

Still Not Cholera.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 21. This evening Dr H. R. Baldwin, president of the board of health, received the bacteriological report of Dr Edson of New York on the case of James Carr, who died here a few days ago. The report says 'James Carr died of genuine Asiatic cholera.'

Hamburg's Plague Abating.

Hamburg Sept. 21.—The reports from the stricken suburbs to-day have encouraged the people to believe that steady and rapid abatement of the plague has begun. The fresh cases number 513, or sixty four less than yesterday. The deaths were 181 or eight less than yesterday. The burials were 216 or forty-five less than yesterday. In the hospitals there are 2791 patients or 248 less than yesterday.

The temporary field hospitals have been closed. The physicians and nurses are now able to attend to their duties while observing their regular hours. The evacuation of the northern hospitals and many drivers of the ambulances have been paid off and discharged. The [illegible] of the unemployed, however, has become almost as grave a question as has been the cholera. The relief committee is spending thousands of marks daily, yet can not feed 50 per cent of the persons applying for food. The eating-houses are besieged by hungry crowds all day and if hundreds of families are to be abandoned to starvation, new systems of serving fresh meats must be found.

This work must be continued for many weeks after the disappearance of the epidemic, for thousands who have been before saved from their autumn wages for their support are penniless and destitute already.

Forty thousand marks from New York were received to-day for the relief fund. Contributions from other cities in the empire are meager. Berlin is said to be sending little or nothing.

CHOLERA NOTES.

The Brazilian government has issued a decree declaring that the port of New York is infected with cholera and that other Atlantic ports of the United States are under suspicion of infection and that all vessels and other vessels from all ports will have to be prepared first to the quarantine station at Isle Grande near Rio Janeiro for inspection.

THE BLESSING OF FREE TRADE.

The following leading editorial of The South District Advertiser, a government paper of Manchester, England, talks plainly about English free trade:

"At the time of the passing of the McKinley tariff, two years ago, many of the newspapers in this country joined in a chorus of condemnation of the measure as a terrible political blunder, which would affect most injuriously the interests of the United States. They predicted that while a few favored capitalists might be enabled to realize large fortunes, the great bulk of the American consumers would find the cost of commodities so much increased in consequence that they would cry out at once for the repeal of the act. We did not take that view, and events are proving that we were right in not taking it. So far from the prophecy being true, the very reverse is found to be the case. Mr. McKinley, the author of the act, is perhaps the most popular man at this moment in the United States. A commission appointed to inquire into the working of the tariff has reported that it has had no appreciable effect in increasing the price of goods to the consumer, but that on the contrary, the increased domestic competition it has called forth has in many cases lessened the price of commodities.

"But while America is improved rather than impoverished, the McKinley tariff has told most disastrously on some of our manufacturing industries. The most remarkable example of this is found in the winding up of the affairs of Sir Titus Salt & Co. The mills of this company are a monument of industrial enterprise and are among the largest in the kingdom. The Salt family not only established the works but created a town on the banks of the Aire, to which the name of Saltaire was given. Only a short time ago an exhibition was held there (opened by the Princess Beatrice) that attracted thousands. The visitors were loud in their admiration of the complete appointments and surroundings of the industrial colony which had sprung into being at the building of a Yorkshire manufacturer who had shown that he had a heart as well as a head for the management of his undertakings. The secret of Sir Titus Salt's success was his quick appreciation of the value of the hair of the alpaca. Vast quantities of the article lay in the Liverpool warehouses unnoticed and despised. The well-known material he produced from the hair soon secured for him both wealth and fame.

"A melancholy change has taken place within the past two years. The business has suddenly and rapidly declined and now the winding up of the great enterprise is published. The McKinley tariff has killed the alpaca trade. There is still a great demand in the United States for the material manufactured at Saltaire, but the new tariff shuts it out. Under the protection of that tariff, moreover, factories have been established which are already producing the goods nearly, if not quite, as cheaply as they can be produced here.

"Saltaire is not a solitary example of the disastrous effect of the McKinley tariff on British manufacturing industry. The tariff has told heavily on other branches of production. This has been the case in a peculiar degree with the tin plate trade. No fewer than ten great factories are reported as being closed, and it is stated that 10,000 workmen are about to emigrate to the United States, where the industry has sprung into sudden and great importance. We may deplore the McKinley tariff, but what more can we do than that? Our present system of free trade has thrown away the only weapons with which we could fight it."

THE SCHOOL REVIEW

One of the most striking suggestions for the local observance of Columbus Day is that in every town and city in the land the schools parade after the morning exercises of the celebration, while this is not specifically included in the official programme prepared for the day, it is strongly urged by the committee of educators who have had the uniform celebration in charge.

If there is to be a general parade of the civic and military organizations a "public school review" should be its most important feature. If there is no general procession the school review should be arranged. Let the pupils march at their school houses at a designated hour and be conducted by efficient marshals, without delays and in perfect order, to their places in the line. The army veterans are properly to march with the schools as special guards of honor. As the reviewing stand is reached each part of the column can salute the flag with cheers and waving of handkerchiefs and caps.

The various patriotic organizations might fittingly be invited both to the morning exercises and to serve, in addition to the veterans, as escorts in the review. The beauty of the review would be heightened if each school carried both the national flag and a distinctive banner of its own.

The election of Weaver is fortunately an impossibility. Even among those who are firm in the belief that he represents more nearly than any other of the candidates the principles which they believe to be most essential it is generally recognized that Mr. Weaver has neither the experience, the character nor the ability to fit him for the presidency of the United States. The choice for president lies between Harrison and Cleveland. Whatever may be the opinion of the people of Colorado in regard to these men or as to the wisdom of their nomination the fact remains that one or the other of them is going to be the next president of the United States, and this fact must be realized by the people of Colorado. It is wholly false that there is little to choose between these two candidates as far as Colorado is concerned. Mr. Harrison represents bimetalism, protection to American labor and an import duty on lead and wool. Mr. Cleveland represents mono-metallism, and free trade in lead and wool. If there was nothing to choose between the two parties on the silver question, there would still be quite enough difference in the record and the declarations of the two parties to warrant every loyal resident of Colorado in casting his vote for the Republican nominees. But there is something to choose between the two parties on the silver question. Mr. Harrison is a pronounced bimetallist and a western man, while Grover Cleveland is an eastern man and clearly committed to the single standard. A vote for Weaver is not only a vote wholly thrown away, so far as any result is concerned, but it is also a vote which contributes directly to the success of the Democratic party in this state. Politics in Colorado this year does not consist in getting what one wants but in taking what one can get that is advantageous, and of the pie which are offered to us to select from Harrison is evidently the more desirable from every point of view.

The report in the Rocky Mountain News of the Republican mass meeting at Colorado City on Tuesday evening was grossly inaccurate, even if it did not intentionally falsified. This is the more remarkable because The News correspondent in this city is a young man who has gained a good reputation for careful and accurate work. It makes very little difference to the Republicans of El Paso county whether their doings are correctly described in The News or not, but it is interesting to note that if the political correspondence of The News in other counties is as distorted by prejudice as is that which comes from our own neighborhood, The News' information is misleading and utterly valueless for any purpose.

[illegible] OF ART

By softening shellac with heat it may be drawn out and twisted into a white sticks and of a fine silky luster. Extreme beauty is given to China works of art by the use of shellac. Some of them are very ancient and of great value. They are chiefly chow-chow boxes, tea basins or other small objects made of wood or metal. They are covered with a coat of shellac colored with cochineal and while the layer of shellac is soft and pliable it is molded and shaped into beautiful patterns. Some of these works thus ornamented are so rare and beautiful that even in China they cost fabulous sums.—Boston Globe.

DREAMS THAT COME.

STRANGE FREAKS AND FANTASIES OF THE SLEEPING MIND.

Is Any Reality Nothing and Sleep a Dream? Are Dreams Reality of the Brain's Action During the Paralysis of a Dreamless Sleep?

The difference between dreams and waking impressions would seem to be, since the dreamer of course believes in the present actual reality of what he sees, that the ideas or images follow one another as the result of certain mental operations or associations over which we have absolutely no control, whereas in our waking moments we may begin, vary or discontinue the series at will. We cannot divert any of our impressions while dreaming by reference to external objects for the simple reason that the power of comparison is lost and there exists a peculiar condition of mental impotency which gives rise to every incongruity and absurdity of the dreamer's experience.

To give an example of these. A man dreams of attending a friend's funeral and walks and chats in the procession with that same friend without thinking it at all odd or peculiar, and frequently, as every dreamer knows, we will shift our scenes to almost incredible distances in a mere moment without arousing a single reflection of astonishment at thus overcoming such physical impossibilities. It is marvelous with what rapidity the mental panorama sometimes passes in review so rapidly that the sound or disturbance which wakes the sleeper appears actually to set in motion the train of images which produces the dream. It is told of a man who served in our late war that he dreamed he had enlisted, gone to the front, fought two battles at widely separated times, deserted, was captured, carried back, court martialed, sentenced to be shot and was awakened by the report of the firing party—to find that he had been asleep just four minutes.

A medical writer records a case of a gentleman suffering with mitral stenosis (valvular disease of the heart) who, when compelled to sleep in a sitting posture, as he suffered the most horrible sense of suffocation whenever he lay down. In these nightmares he thought he was attacked by a monstrous skeleton which clasped its bony fingers about his throat and tried to strangle him. Once he fell over upon the bed in his sleep. His attendant ran and raised him up instantly, yet in that brief moment or time he seemed to have struggled with the demon for upward of an hour.

A friend dreamed that he went from New York to Boston by steamer, spent several days with an acquaintance and on the return voyage, a gale arising, the seas broke over the vessel and drenched him with spray. He woke to find his wife playfully sprinkling water in his face. He had dozed in his chair for less than five minutes. A comical story is told of a naval surgeon in whom dreams of any character could be produced by simply whispering in his ear during sleep. He could be made to go through the whole ordeal of a quarrel, a challenge and a duel, the pistol being discharged by him at the given signal with as much accuracy as to time and if he were wide awake. Finding him asleep one day in a hammock on deck one of the officers whispered in his ear that he had fallen overboard and to swim for his life, as a shark was after him. The fact that it was principally for the marines did not detract a whit from the enjoyment with which they witnessed his frolicksome contortions.

On another occasion they told him a vessel had been engaged, that the decks were being swept by machine guns and the men falling like leaves around him. He became white as a sheet and manifested the liveliest symptoms of fear. After awhile they all began to groan in imitation of the wounded, and upon one of them suddenly shouting "Poor old Billy McCue" (the surgeon's assistant), the poor fellow jumped up with cold perspiration standing like beads on his forehead and broke for the cabin on a run. Strange to say, however, he had after a time not the slightest remembrance of the dream.

That dreams are ocular subjects fidelitous, laid before the faithful eye as mental shadows of what has passed previously before us, is evinced by the fact that they never reveal any change which may have taken place in the scene since we last saw it. If we dream of a place we have visited in summer it must always recur to us in its summer dress, but if we visit the place both in summer and winter the scene is apt to appear in the garb we first saw it in, as the impression first conveyed is likely to have been the stronger.

The undirected ideas of a dream may sometimes correct the errors of the day. A paying teller in a bank noticed among the line of patrons one particularly noisy and impatient individual who insisted upon the immediate payment of a check for fifty dollars, as he could not wait his turn. The teller, to get rid of his importunities paid him and thought no more of the circumstance. At the end of the fiscal year the books of the bank showed a deficiency of fifty dollars, and after a week's hard work in trying to make the balance he gave the matter up and drew his personal check for the amount. The same night he dreamed, and the whole circumstance of the noisy individual returned to him so clearly that he went to the party's account and found where the money had been paid and never entered in the books of interest.

Scott relates a story of a gentleman who was sued for the recovery of certain tithes which he was strongly impressed had been paid by his father, then deceased. The night before the trial he dreamed that his father appeared and told him the debt had been paid and the papers relating to the transaction were in the hands of a certain attorney whom he had employed on this one occasion for special reasons. He further said that should the matter have escaped the attorney's memory it might be recalled by mentioning a Portugese gold piece which had been given in payment and the change spent at the tavern. The gentleman hunted up the attorney, who had entirely forgotten the matter, but remembered it immediately when the gold coin was mentioned.—Philadelphia Times.

THE MONKEY LANGUAGE.

Professor Garner's Discovery Sets a Hermit to Thinking and Guessing.

No man—not even a Macaulay a Dr. Johnson or a Chauncey Depew—may longer monopolize speech. Professor Garner has discovered that monkeys have language. The phonograph which preserves the voice of Gladstone and the song of Patti has also recorded the words of the Capuchin monkey and the Barbary ape. In the Madison Square garden recently there were presented two singular spectacles. In one part of the building two human beings belabored each other with boxing gloves, while in another a monkey spoke to the Nineteenth Century club through a phonograph. The exhibition of muscle and agility was given by the human beings. It was the monkey that did the thinking.

If monkeys have language is it not probable that different nationalities and tribes of monkeys have different languages? Is it likely that a monkey from Dahomey would be able to understand the lingo of a monkey from Timbuctoo? All that the monkey from Timbuctoo said would be Greek to the monkey from Dahomey. On the other hand the discourse of the monkey from Dahomey would be no more than Chinese to the monkey from Timbuctoo.

At what dim time on the banks of the Nile or in the gardens of Timbuctoo or on the steppes of Kilima Njaro did the monkey language begin? Was there ever any tree of Babel down which the monkeys traveled in confusion?

Is the noisy simian society form which are derived the multitude of monkey language? Has any of the various simian tongues been enriched by the infusion of foreign monkey words? Have the simian languages had life and growth and phonetic change? Does the speech of the monkeys whose pictures are in the tombs of Egypt resemble the speech of contemporary monkeys on the Congo as Latin resembles the modern Romance languages? Are there any dead monkey languages?

In a rude dialect spoken in the remote backwoods districts the monkey outdoes the parrot in the monkey centers of population. Do the monkeys on the Congo ape the more polished and elegant languages of the Parisian and Tuscan of the similar ape—while the monkey in the backwoods apes a peasant.

Perhaps the more simple monkey language, as Arabic, like Chinese, and the more highly developed inflectional, like English. It is possible that some of the more complex simian languages have eight or ten tenses, including the second pluperfect. It may be that the young monkeys parse and conjugate while pursuing some complicated monkey language for mental drill.

Can people learn the monkey languages and thus draw nearer to their kin across the seas? We believe that they can. Professor Garner already speaks the Capuchin monkey language with facility, though his vocabulary is not large. And it must be a pleasant surprise to a Central Park monkey to find a solitary citizen of the great republic learned enough to converse with him.

Some day not a few cultivated and refined people will know some simian language and be able to talk with monkeys. In that happy day people can invite an ape to breakfast, ascertain his point of view, his philosophy of life and discuss with him his social, political and aesthetic theories.—L. H. Tupper in New York Journal.

Pigeon Lofts in Italy

Mr. Tegetmeier sees no difficulty in establishing pigeon lofts for military purposes. There is a military loft at Rome, another at the Island of Maddalena, another at Cagliari and they practice on what is called the Cagliari Napoli line. The distance between these two places is 294 miles. They throw the birds from ships and they have, we are assured, been known to do a distance of as much as 285 miles over the sea at about thirty-one miles an hour.—London News.

Grocery Stores in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia grocery store is an institution. It is handed down from father to son and it stays on the same corner where it was founded when William Penn's surveyors finished their work. Like other Philadelphia institutions it is never reconstructed, altered or rebuilt. It stays till it crumbles with the same name over the door and the same names in the books.—New York Sun.

Voltaire and Chesterfield

My private opinion is that many of the anecdotes and bright sayings attributed to famous men were made up by their more witty and dispo[illegible] servitors or literary hangers on. However the following story which I heard years ago sounds as if it might be true for the man concerned were quite capable of such a witty passage at arms

The famous Lord Chesterfield was at a grand dinner in Paris where the no less famous Voltaire was one of the guests The Englishman with mild admiration in his eyes, was gazing about the brilliant gathering of ladies when the French wit addressed him

"My lord I know you are a judge Which think you are more beautiful—the English or French ladies"

With a quick glance over the assembly Chesterfield answered Upon my word Mr Voltaire, I am no judge of paintings

Some time after this Voltaire went to London where he was honored. On evening at a ball given to the diplomatic corps at St James palace Voltaire and Chesterfield met again A lady prodigiously painted was so attracted to the brilliant Frenchman that her conduct attracted no little attention

Chesterfield came quietly up and tapping Voltaire on the shoulder he whispered

"Take care sir, you are in danger of being captivated"

Voltaire with one of those quick sidelong glances for which he was noted replied

My lord I wonder to be taken for an English draft sighting under French colors

ALFRED R CALHOUN

The Size of Raindrops

How large is a drop of rain? Probably most people have a notion that raindrops are nearly all of one size although it is a matter of common observation that what is called a misty rain or drizzle the individual drops are very small The question of the size of raindrops is not so unimportant as might be supposed and Mr E J Lowe has collected many facts bearing upon it and presented them to the Royal Meteorological society

He employed in his experiments sheets of slate, made in book form so as to be readily closed and ruled in squares The impressions of the drops were caught on the slate and afterward carefully copied on paper

He discovered that the size of rain drops varies from a speck so small as to be invisible up to a diameter of two tenths

Every reader has probably noticed that the raindrops preceding a thunderstorm frequently assume gigantic proportions though he may not have suspected that they could ever attain so great a size as Mr Lowe has discovered that they

Other interesting facts about raindrops which have been brought out by Mr Lowe's experiments are that drops of the same size do not always contain the same amount of water and that some of the largest drops are hollow —Youth's Companion

Her Reason

"It can never be, Mr Fish" she said trying to be firm although the tears were welling up in her forgetmenot eyes

Why not, Geneviere? he asked bending toward her until she could distinctly hear him swallow the lump that had risen in his throat at her words. Don't you love me any more?

Yes, yes, I do love you Believe me I love you" she sobbed hastily withdrawing her hand from his.

Tell me he asked with anguish how you learned to love another?

No! she cried Oh how could you doubt me?

Well, then why have you changed

It is—it is—oh how can I say it she jerked out It is the name

My name? he echoed It is not the Four Hundred as well as yours Miss Codd!

"You wrong me You wrong me great!" she sobbed drawing off his ring and standing before him in all her statelinesses

I mean I can never be yours, because I would break mamma's heart to sink the family name and I cow can I become Mrs Codd Fish?"—New York Evening S

The Discovery of Tea.

By whom or when the virtues of tea as a beverage were discovered is lost in the mists of legend and tradition. The fact is that it is spoken of in Chinese as far back as 2,700 years B C and is mentioned in classics of that date. Tradition says that its virtues were discovered by an ancient King Shen Nung. The Dictionary of Husbandry says it flourished during the reign of Kang Hi and some water over a fire in which the leaves were boiled was given to the sick and afterward to the people at large. It was stated that the sick man had been in the habit of taking strong tea to Lon Jen from Yorkshire [illegible] Dr Bramwell had in his pocket a quantity of tea not to be sick she had made five passages and enjoyed very well

As regards the virtues of hypnotism Dr Bramwell has found that they were easily accelerated by an operator the patient being hypnotized He has been able to induce the patient to impress a suggestion upon the mind of the patient so that they were entirely free to accept or refuse his suggestions. In some cases he had been too impressed by the patient when separated from him for some time had supposed that he would not be able to renew the influence—Pall Mall Gazette

Mr. W. S. Steele and his bride arrived in the city last night and registered at The Antlers.

The Sylvanite Milling company filed articles of incorporation yesterday. The capital stock is $10,000.

Marshal Dana is taking a few days rest in the country and Captain Gathright is in charge at the city hall.

Mr. W. F. Reinert, editor and manager of The Daily Mining Exchange Journal of Denver, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. Arthur Barney, who had been in the city for several weeks, left for his home in Albuquerque, N. M., last evening.

Mr. Edmund Russell, the apostle of Delsarte, is now in Salt Lake City, and has recently arranged an article for The Times on "Expression."

The mining stocks were quite active yesterday, including Ophir, Pharmacist, Summit and Anaconda. Gold King was also selling and is quoted at 30 cents.

An alteration, followed by a few blows, occurred between stablemen at one of the livery barns yesterday afternoon. The aggressor was arrested.

Mr. J. A. Hayes has purchased of Mr. L. R. Ehrich, lot 29, in block 71, for $10,000. This is the fifty feet next adjoining the Bush bakery building on North Tejon street.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to E. F. Arigood of Colorado Springs and Miss Eva Thornell of Roswell; to Michael J. Walsh of San Francisco and Miss Sarah J. McCready of Colorado Springs.

The headquarters of the Republican club and the Republican county central committee will be opened in the Sweet & Wier building on Tejon street to-day. Mr. Guy Humphrey will have charge for the committee.

The Etta Consolidated Mining company filed articles of incorporation yesterday, the incorporators being Henry B. Hayden, E. H. De Vore and H. M. Blackmer. The capital is $100,000 and the company will operate in Boulder county.

A Republican club was organized at Green Mountain Falls Tuesday evening with a membership of about twenty five. Hon. M. M. Baldwin, Dr. Robinson and others were present and made addresses. The voters at Green Mountain Falls are all Republicans this year.

The opera house orchestra this season will consist of the following well known musicians: M. O. Barnes, director; Mr. C. Carter, pianist; Mr. W. H. Metz, bass; Mr. C. Draper, flute; Mr. D. S. Gilmore, clarinet; Mr. D. F. Rawley, cornet; Professor Pryor, trombone; Mr. A. C. Martin, Drums.

The police authorities have adopted the plan for the present of ordering all presumably vicious vagrants to leave the city instead of adding them to the chain gang. A negro ex-convict was "moved on" yesterday morning. Two men charged with intoxication denied the charge, but were found guilty and fined.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Sprague gave a dinner last evening at their pleasant home on College place in honor of Mr. H. A. Risley, editor of THE GAZETTE. The guests included Colorado Springs and Manitou newspaper men and their wives, and a most delightful evening was spent in the discussion of matters of interest to the craft and reminiscences.

As a result of the Republican meeting in Colorado City Tuesday night a Republican campaign club is to be organized over there immediately and it will start out with a large membership. It is reported that Mr. Eddy made many friends by his straight-forward speech and Colorado City's Republicanism is less doubtful than it was before the meeting.

The meeting of the State Editorial association which begins in this city on Oct. 5 is designed to be one of the most useful meetings which the association has ever held. It is intended to devote the meeting to the discussion of practical newspaper work, and an effort will be made to interest and bring in the actual newspaper workers of the state, many of whom have hitherto regarded the organization as devoted entirely to pleasure and free excursions. Members of the local press club will read papers on press topics, and an address will be delivered during the session by one of the leading ministers or educators of the city.

District Court

The jury that heard the case of the People vs. Johnson and Jarvis returned a verdict of not guilty.

People vs. Harry Smith, charge of larceny. J. K. Goudy entered his appearance for defendant. Trial and verdict of guilty.

People vs. Louis Flagell; nolle prosequi entered.

People vs. Sadie Morrison; charged with refusing to obey a subpoena; defendant ordered to pay costs.

People vs. John Morrison; discharged.

Court adjourned to 9:30 this morning.

Merit of Dublin.

John T. Kelly and his funny company come to the opera house next Monday evening, presenting for the first time here his new comedy, "McFee of Dublin." The new piece has been a great success in other cities and is said to be one of the funniest comedies ever produced. Says an exchange: "The fun of the piece is clean cut and wholesome throughout. There is nothing to offend anyone, but everything to entitle everybody to laugh. Kelly takes the part of Roger O'Mara, and is in reality valet to the true Lord McFee. The genuine lord is abroad and in his place Rodger assumes his lordship's position and makes love to a girl he believes to be Adelaide Werner, the wealthy heiress and opera queen. But Adelaide's maid, Molly, has assumed the mistress' place, and so the two frauds go on courting one another, each for the other's supposed wealth. In the midst of the plot the true lord and true opera queen arrive, and a highly ludicrous concatenation of circumstances arises. To disclose the development of the story would be to anticipate much of the enjoyment that the reader will experience in witnessing the play; but all may be assured that affairs are cleverly tangled and untangled again, and that fun and frolic galore are the result. The supporting company is an excellent one including Miss Florrie West, a dashing English soubrette, Adelaide Randall, the prima donna and others."

A Dog Worth Having.

A women living in a flat on Gates avenue near this office is the owner of a dog that is worth having. It is a mongrel cur as devoid of pedigree as a paving stone is of hair. Exactly how she came in possession of the dog she cannot say. He happened around one day in a forlorn and hungry condition, and being fond of animals she took pity on him, fed him, and at once the dog knew that his fortune was made. He is a good deal in appearance like Bouley's frog, that is to say, there are no points about this dog to indicate that he is better than any other dog. But, as the sequel will show, he proved to be an animal of singular judgment and good sense. The other day while roaming in the vicinity he found a five dollar bill. Now by what process of reasoning or by previous observation that dog had learned that money had a value or that five dollar bills were worth having, is impossible to say.

The fact remains, however, that this intelligent mongrel dog took the bill in his mouth and, in spite of the efforts of a number of street boys who saw the performance and tried to get the money away from him, scooted with it to the Gates avenue flat and deposited it safely at the feet of his mistress with a wag of his tail, as if to say, "You see, I'm able to pay for my board." The woman would not part with that dog now for a good many five dollar bills. This singular story of an animal's sagacity may look improbably, but it is absolutely true.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Mockingbird in California.

Some of my most intimate acquaintances have been the mockingbirds in the California groves. It seems almost unnecessary to cage them, they are so happy among the ever blooming trees, but cages hang in balconies, at doors and windows, all about the courts and under the eaves, and passing down the streets one hears at all hours gushes of melody from the wonderful minnickets in their prisons. It is a cheerful sound, yet I like better to listen to them as they flit at will where the red pomegranates flower, where the wild figs rear their massive canopies, where they may hide their young as they choose in the fragrant orange trees' tops.

One splendid fellow has his perch on a windmill fan opposite my door, where all day long he pours out trills rapturous with glee. Some mornings he is in such ecstasy that he bubbles down his notes in snatches, wasting no time in weaving them together, whenever I appear on the doorstep. I know he watches for my coming, for he apparently hoards his musical quiver full of gay darts, keeping silence for intervals when I am unseen, letting them fly in an airowy shower, as if he would transport me when I reappear. He is the saucy tyrant who pecks at my hat, my hair, my gown, when I venture too near the rose vine on the lattice where his newly hatched babies are. San Diego Cor. Christian Union.

McCOMAS. At Buena Vista hot springs, Sept. 19, 1892, Thomas Moulding.

It will be painful news to the many friends of Mr. Moulding to learn of his death at Buena Vista hot springs on the morning of the 19th inst. Mr. Moulding had gone there with the hope that the hot baths would be of benefit to him. He had been sick in this city about six weeks. Mr. Moulding was an honest, worthy, intelligent and Christian gentleman, who would not stifle his convictions, but proclaimed them on all proper occasions to impenitence, severity and Christianity, especially.

His wife and son-in-law, Dr. M. P. Gooding, passed through the city with the remains last evening en route to their home in Chicago.

THOMAS A. CURNELL.

Are You Looking For comfortable accommodations for the fall and winter? THE ALTA VISTA, Family Hotel, is better prepared than ever to offer attractions to permanent boarders. Without any reflection upon any hotel or boarding house, the Alta Vista claims to fill a midway place; to possess the best features of both, and to afford greater privacy and independence, greater comforts and conveniences than even good boarding houses can supply, without the annoyances and disturbing bustle of large transient and commercial hotels.

Distinctive hotel features are made as little apparent as possible, while much is introduced to add to the homelike air of the house.

The house is modern, with electric lights and bells, elevator, steam heat, a table which has no superior, hot and cold baths, and efficient service in all departments.

We would be pleased to have everyone looking for comfortable accommodations call and inspect our rooms and learn of the advantages the house has to offer.
